

DEADLINE

---

‘The Order’ Canceled By Netflix After 2 Seasons

By Nellie Andreeva Co-Editor-in-Chief, TV

November 14, 2020 10:12am

Netflix

Netflix has opted not to renew horror drama series The Order for a third season. Creator/writer and executive producer Dennis Heaton revealed the cancellation on Twitter.

Dennis Heaton
@DennisHeaton2

For two seasons I was honored to work with an incredible cast and crew on The Order for @netflix. It is one of the best experiences of my career. Unfortunately, we aren't returning, but I will always cherish the memories and the props I stole. Thank you all for watching.

6:00 PM · Nov 13, 2020

1.1K

370 people are Tweeting about this

Heaton also teased for fans what could've happened in Season 3.

Dennis Heaton
@DennisHeaton2

PS - Jack was totally going to raise Alyssa from the dead, but she was going to come back wrong. Like, Pet Sematary wrong. Probably possessed by Zecchia. And a whole bunch of other corpses were coming back with her.

6:01 PM · Nov 13, 2020

467

129 people are Tweeting about this

The Order, from Canadian production company Nomadic Pictures, starred Jake Manley as Jack and Sarah Grey as Alyssa. It centers on college freshman Jack Morton (Manley), who joins a fabled secret society, The Order, where he is thrust into a world of magic, monsters, and intrigue. As Jack goes deeper, he uncovers dark family secrets and an underground battle between werewolves and the magical dark arts.

Nomadic's Chad Oakes and Mike Frislev executive produced along with David Von Ancken. Season 2 of the series was released in June.

COMMENTS

- Glenn on November 16, 2020 7:06 am

The hell? Netflix is seriously starting to suck. You get invested in a series and then they cancel it.

- Cat on November 15, 2020 7:51 pm

This really sucks. I finished season 1 and now am watching season 2. Was looking forward to another season. Netflix...bunch of Jerks.

- Gus J on November 15, 2020 5:42 pm

This is just another example of Netflix canceling a series that has a lot of potential and many possible story plots. They have resorted to making a lot of movies or series that have no depth or originality. If Netflix isn't careful they will become the CNN of streaming services. Most streaming services can barely claim that they produce quality programming like Netflix used to do. These days streaming companies are just running reruns, they have basically become like Nick at night. And that's why people are unplugging. They want originality and characters that they can relate too.

- Meredith Davidson on November 15, 2020 5:05 pm

I am so upset about this

- Roxie on November 15, 2020 4:10 pm

Oh no dont cancel the Order. Been waiting on the next season.

- WarEagleUS on November 15, 2020 9:58 am

I would be fine with 4 seasons and it being done and letting it play out. I get Covid caused some havoc but not so much. Especially with being consuming content with the way things are now-a-days. You would think they would have kept it going. 4 seasons would be enough to tell the magic and the lore for this group and be done. I loved how Season 2 delved more into the knights and Silverbeard and Midnight and even the Alpha (which I was hoping would go to Jack to be quite honest).

- Jim on November 15, 2020 9:13 am

I'm learning not to become invested in any Netflix shows, for fear of cancellation after one or two seasons. Basically, I'm only using it for the occasional movie and non-scripted reality ('Great British Baking Show,' 'Sugar Rush,' etc.).

- Anonymous on November 15, 2020 6:35 am

Netflix sucks why is not going to be a 3 season you can't just leave it like that I cancel my subscription with netflix

- Robert Schertzer on November 14, 2020 11:59 pm

The order was an awesome show you need to have a season 3 this is not right.

- Nick on November 14, 2020 8:04 pm

This is bs! First Sabrina now The Order. What to watch now? Maybe Amazon should take the show and give us more seasons!

- Anonymous on November 14, 2020 7:27 pm

Does anyone remember when Netflix was the place that saved shows?

- Crystal on November 14, 2020 6:02 pm

That's bullshit!!! I loved that show! I was looking forward to season 3. This is terrible..

- Steven Wilgus on November 14, 2020 5:53 pm

Well I'm really sad it's not coming back, I was hoping they could bring her back and not be all jacked up which is commonly the case with just about every return from the dead or from the pits of hell trope, it was one of my favorite television programs and I don't but you care for the horror stuff like this at all. Oh well...

- Anonymous on November 15, 2020 9:54 am

Sad

- John on November 14, 2020 3:33 pm

Boooooooooo! I really liked this show, Too bad.

- Dan on November 14, 2020 2:27 pm

WTF? Why do I even bother with Netflix anymore?! Such a good show. I actually only watched the first season AFTER it was renewed, because I don't want to try watching a new show on Netflix anymore because they literally cancel everything.

Very sad. It was a entertaining, funny show in the vain of Buffy (not as good) but has potential. Ugh.

- WfR on November 14, 2020 11:33 am

This is why I stopped subscribing to Netflix. Shows are cancelled prematurely. Showrunners on Netflix shows should just plan on making each season like it would be their last. That way the box set whenever they release it would at least feel like a complete series to buyers.