October 14, 2016

A few hours of the release of its fifth episode, Van Helsing gets a Season 2! One more reason to look urgently this new vampire series!

And 2! A few hours before the broadcast of episode 5 of Van Helsing, for which we dévoilions you the synopsis and promo video , Syfy creates the event by renewing its vampire series for season 2! This new burst of episodes will also be composed of 13 episodes, the production will start in January 2017. the showrunner, Neil LaBute, has also indicated that he thought he had the ideas to realize several seasons, great news for those who have become addicted to the series . At melty, we are delighted to renew for several reasons. Firstly because Van Helsing no relation to vampire series that we know. Here, vampires are really scared, some adopt animal behavior and above all, a real hierarchy exists among them. While some look like bloodthirsty zombies, others think of their future and seeks to procreate. So we think we are heading for a plot where we will witness the creation of hybrid beings. Still, for now, by their different behaviors and complexity of their organization, vampires are as fascinating as repulsive . Undeniably, we are eager to learn more about them.

If this is not done, we also advise you to watch emergency Van Helsing for his main character. As intriguing as disturbing, Vanessa is the opposite of heroin. We fail to know its truth, what his intentions are and what his knowledge. This character is disturbing, which makes it even more interesting. The other characters are not left out and this is to the credit of the series. The secondary characters are not stooges, all have their history, all have a purpose in the plot and all have their share shade , and all are interesting and offer something of their own. Finally Van Helsing has an incredible mythology since character is related to Dracula. Suffice to say that the series could offer us many surprises and possibly go back in time (in the image of episode 2) to tell us a little more about the past of Vanessa and her family. If you like vampires, know that soon, NBC will offer Midnight, Texas, the new series from the creator of True Blood, which was unveiled in a tantalizing trailer! Are you happy with this renewal?
